Dear Shravya,

Today didn't go as I thought it would. The reason why I wanted this plan to work is because I know after you going to pg, because of the promise I would not meet you. So I wanted to meet you before you go. I wanted to spend some time with you, this spending time with you is different than spending time on call. I wanna look in your eyes and talk to you. When you were going I did not want you to go. I wanted to spend time with you alone. I called you to washroom, I tried but it didn't work.

Lo, I want you, I am addicted to you, if this is what you want me to chance, im sorry lo, I cant change the way I love, I cant change how much I am addicted to you. I am completely in love with you, with the smell of your hair, with your talks, your smile, your scoldings, your dress, eyes, body, you name it everything. I really didn't want to have a fight with you when you left. I really wanted to you be with you alone asthe. No matter how many times you tell to my stupid brain, it wont understand anything all it knows is that it loves you and don't give up on her no matter what. I know I make a lot of promises and I don't stand by it. But some promises that I make, I know I wont break it no matter what. Remember the day we went to temple, I had promised you that I will never give up on you. Have I ever given up on you? I know I would never give up on you. Then you called, im happy again.love you

Yours sincerely,
